Hangkona. November 12rn, 1886. Among the public works now in contemplation the construction of a new Central Market claims perhaps for the moment the largest share of interest. It is now about three the Surveyor-General presented his plan for a New Market, the want of which had been recognised for a long period antecedent to that date. Mr. Parce's sebeme, which is for an anlarged a well as for a completely new market, in volved the resumption of some ground, and this necessarily took time. The property has now, however, all-been acquired, and the only thing that remains to be done is to find the money to start the work of demolition and reconstruction. Some little difficulty is being experienced, we believe, in finding a site for a temporary market while the new structure is in course of erection. Ground is exceedingly scarce in the city of Victoria, open spaces are few and far between, and are then too small to accommodate a very large at the junction of Wing Lok Street with the a small market, but it would not give accommodation for all the denizens of the Central Market. Possibly the butchers might find a separate habitation, and the compradores would have to take shops, leaving the market to the vendors of fish, fruit, and veget ables, &c., until such time as the new Market arrives at completion. The ground at the back of the building known as Crosby's Store might certainly be used, but to that there are many objections, as it would constitute great nuisance to the Supreme Court, and the will be at least twelve months in building.

But is it really necessary to have a temperary market at all? It does not follow that because the adjoining property has been resumed, and the plan for a now market on the site of the existing one prepared, it be discovered. 'Can this be done? " Banian;" when writing on the subject some three years ago, proposed that a new market should be built upon ground reclaimed from the foreshore in front of the Prava, and if the water be not too deep we do not see why this suggestion should not be adopted. There are many excellent reasons in favour of such a scheme, among which the following appear specially entitled to consideration. The site of the present Central Market is very valuable and if sold ought, we think, to realize a sum sufficient to reclaim a site and pay part of the cost of the construction of the new building. It would render the provision of a temporary market unnecessary, as the old one could be used until the new structure was ready for occupation. A new market erected on a square or oblong site reclaimed in front of the Praya would enjoy the obvious advantage of not being sur- and Indian mails, left Calcutta on Wednesday rounded by high close buildings; it would be for this port.

open to the salutary and sanitary influences of sun and wind; and it could be so constructed that its drainage could be led off directs into the harbour and the floor kept emigrantly dry and clean. The nuisance, now very great at certain times market would be obviated, as the boats could The Vade Mecum for every Resident in the go alongside the wall and deliver the goods doing other damage. A few days ago also right into the building. The Praya in front one of the beats of the H. K. C. and M. Co. Orders may be sent to Daily Press Office, where of the entrance to the present market is always wet and filthy, and traffic is considerably impeded by the discharge of fish, vegetables, &c. An isolated site like that suggested would also afford an opportunity for the erection of a lighter, pleasanter, sirier, and more attractive building.

Against all these advantages there are of course several drawbacks to a site reclaimed from the foreshore. It will be objected, doubtless, that it would, deprive a certain number of marine lots of their present water frontage and might lead to demands for compensation, on the part of the owners. It may also be urged that a Market built in such a position would be more exposed to damage by typhoons or gales than if it occupied a more inland site. It might likewise be said, perhaps, that the reclamation would interfere to some slight extent with the convenience of the smaller Chinese craft accustomed to lie along the Praya. But are these objections of sufficient importance to weigh much in the scale? We think not. The compensation for deprivation of water frontage need not be a very serious matter if the reclamation does not involve the removal of would not interfere very much with vested to damage by typhoons, care would, of course, be necessary to ensure its strength and FLOWER PARCEL of 20 packets, price $ 5.00 | ability to resist the force of wind and water. VEGETABLE PARCELOf 48 packets, price $ 7.50 We have now enjoyed twelve years' immunity from any serious typhoon, and must take some risk with all public buildings. A new building on the Praya would stand the chance of being unroofed in any very formidable gale, and it is impossible to provide against all accidents. Then, as to the Chinese craft, cargo boats and sampans, ther would really be little if at all inconvenienced by such a reclamation, which would indeed afford them a more sheltered anchorage. The real difficulty probably would be the depth of the water, which for aught we know may be so great in the locality mentioned as to render reclamation there expensive. This is a matter which can only be decided by proad fressed "The Editor," and those on business "The fessional engineers. We make the suggestion,

The object of this measure is sufficiently well indicated by its title. The second Bill is ontitled " An Ordinance to enable the Governor of Hongking to appoint Commissions under the seal of the Colony and to confer certain powers on Commissioners so appointed necessary for conducting inquiries." From with a good supply of small change as well as time to time Commissions have 'een annointed by the Governor to inquire into various subjects, but beyond a general order by the Governor to the public depart. ments to afford the Commissioners assistance there bas bitherto been no power to compel the attendance of witnesses, nor has the evidence of such as did attend been taken on cath or subject to the pains and penalties of perjury. The attendance of witnesses outside the public departments has therefore been purely voluntary, and at times there has been considerable difficulty in obtaining evidence necessary to the inquiry. One case in particular we may mention. Grave charges of corruption were Ching Mai. This was in February last, and ands against the members of the Public Works department, the parties affected demanded an inquiry, which was granted. and a Commission was appointed. THE INSURRECTION IN HAINAN.

This movement, about which various reports have been published, is growing very serious and causing the greatest anxiety to the Kwangtung Authorities. We are now in receipt of particulars from Hollow, which show how the rebellion originated, and in what position matters are at the present time. After the war in Tonquin a large number of disbanded soldiers were sent to Hainan, and as they could get nothing to do and appear to have been allowed to retain their arms, they shortly commenced looting the villages in the district of after some collisions between them and the troops, the Taotai at Kiungchow at length came to an agreement with these men to transport them, some eighteen hundred in number, to a place near Pakhoi. Before doing so, however, he had to refer the matter to Canton, and the answer was so long delayed that when it arrived only four hundred of the men were to be found, the remainder kas joining the malcontents. The girl was shut up in a house in Tung Wolane, Western District, and attention was directed to her by her jumping down from a window in consequence of ill-treatment at the hands of some of the defendants. Some men went into the house and found the girl huddled up in the cookhouse, and they got her out, and the Police arrested the defendants. The girl said she had been a servant at a place called Sun Choi, and the second and third defendants brought her down to Hongkong to sell her. She jumped down because she was ill-treated. It was stated that the first defendant rented the floor on which the girl was kept, and it was sublet to the fourth, but the second and third defendants brought her there.

The first and fourth defendants were discharged, and the other two were sentenced to nine months' hard labour.

LONDON, 12th October. Following the arrest of Captain Moonlight, the leader of the notorious gang of midnight marauders, the wildest rumours have been circulated of offers which have been made to the police authorities in Ireland and England to disclose the entire network of the agrarian "circles." and also divulge the names of some prominent men, who it is alleged, are deeply implicated in the direction of bloody plots which have been concepted with a view to securing for Ireland party has so long been demanding. It is rumoured that the Irish National Land League is not now the chief agency by which the agitation for Ireland's demands is maintained. Whether this be true or not, it is at present impossible to say. There is, however, no shadow of doubt as to something akin to an open revolt having occurred among the leaders of the league. It is said that the leaders of that organisation are greatly of the better class of the Irish tenantry there seems to be a growing tendency to pay rent for their holdings, and in almost every case where the landlords have offered to make a fair reduction in the rent and the arrears, the offer has been accepted. One very potent influence which is telling with marked effect against the league, is the loud and bitter complaint which is being made by the evicted. They allege that they were connected to withstand the demands which were made upon them by the landlords, and promised that in the event of their being evicted the league would support them, and save them from suffering and hardship. This, it is alleged, the league has almost wholly neglected to do. executive of the league has threatened to dissolve the organisation if the branch leagues neglect to support the centre. Mr. J. G. Biggar, the member for West Cavan, and other extreme Parnellites are advocating that the evicted persons shall at once seek relief and shelter in the workhouses. Mr. Biggar argues that this would be the most effective way of retaliating against the landlords as they have to pay saven-eighths of the entire amount of the poor rate. That this advice will be accepted is doubtful; but of this there is no question, those who have had the misfortune to be evicted are suffering great hardship, and, as the cold weather has already set in this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography

HARD TIMES FOR TOMMY ATKINS. A soldier belonging to a battalion of the Durham Light Infantry at present being grilled under the blazing sun of the Egyptian desert writes from Assouan: bewailing his hard fate, and protesting against his being kept in such a place, and a friend has sent his letter to the Newcastle Chronicle. Assouan, says Tommy Atkins, is all very well for officers and gentlemen, as they have nothing to do, plenty of servants to wait on them, and plenty of good things meca, though it is very much to the same that do not filter through to the ranks, but effect. Luxury had increased, and so had and unnumbered horrors of the place A claim for the disease a foreign origin. Its beyond endurance. No one on the pot can look at of our own lecturer already quoted, but exthe men without seeing miery and sickness pressing it more naively. "As to the nature written in their faces, and the expression of the disease," he save, " none but the gods of countenance which so ins to say, "I shall can understand it;" and he mentions how think myself very luck if I ever got out of this place alive." . "No bave to get up at four o'clock in the morning and go to the Nile for water. At this work we continue till eight. At Kalf-past eight we resume it until about ien. At four we start again and go on till six-in a broiling sun all the time, And nothing but desert around us. To the constant dread of sunstroke we have added the fearful mortality among our comrades. I saw nine poor fellows buried in one night, and it was not unusual to see four or five burials per day. So much work in the water gives us rheumatism, and as to the water itself, we have to drink it, muddy as disease spread, and the doctors were silent; it is. I believe we are supposed to get ice, and at last our own physician Sydenham bebut it never seems to survive its passage came the first great modern authority on the through the higher ranks. Tommy cannot even find relief for his feelings in the wolloping of his niggor.

HOW TO COMPOSE AN OVERTURE by the Spaniard to the use of the wine of An extremely interesting letter of the great composer Rossini has recently come to light, from which we give a few extracts. In this characteristic epistle he furnishes a few hints | Inverage, had a noteworthy discussion with for composing an overture, which may perhaps be useful to some of our musical readers. "First method-general and invari- period. The sage, who had been roughing able rule-Never," writes Rossini, "compose your overture until the evening immediately i preceding the first representation. The noise they made was simply deafening. Neverthean overture at all. Meyerbeer did this both in 'The Huguenots' and 'Robert the Devil." It should be remembered that the above letter was addressed to a Signor Amaldi, whose nephew had been guilty of writing au opera, and who had had the brilliant notion to apply to the "Swan of Pezz iro" for advice ; as to how to compose an overture. The note concludes with "Best wishes for the future of your nephew, and many thanks for the delicious pálé de foie gras you so kindly sent

GOUT.

.Cun it be that the constitution of English. men, like the climate of their island, is undergoing change? We seem to have done with old fashioned summers and springs, and now it is the turn for well established and long known diseases to become eccentric in their course, and quite incalculable in their prevalence. In Hogarth's time gont was a kind of aristocratic appanage-an undesirable but dignified heirfoom in noble families. In the "Marriage à la mode," the father of the bridegroom seems almost as proud of his gout as of his pedigree, and blazons his coronet on the crutch that supports bim, and on the woodwork of the bassock on which the poor inflamed foot rests so patiently. These were the days when a nobleman filled his celtar in his youth, emptied it in his middle age, and at the close of life had the family enemy to deal with, and met it with dignity. These days seem to be obsolete now. Men do not sit down of malice prepense, and drink their two or three bottles of port each at a sitting, and yet gout is more general than it has ever been. It has abated (perhaps) in intensity, look if they retained their vigour till, say, been raised to the dignity of a disease, and suppressed gout has been just pronounced have seemed prematurely cut short at 150. by a great authority to be "the last resort of the destitute." The authority was on this - - occasion criticising not his patients, but his pupils, and this dictum of the lecture room amounted to this, that there was a usage in the profession, when the difficulties of the diagnosis were insuperable, to put the case down as one of suppressed gout.

In old times hard drinking was general in a special class, and gout was general in that class. In these days abstemiousness is the rule in all classes, and gout seems to be fairly distributed among them. By the curious irony of circumstances the aprings which cure the disease are mostly to be found on the Continent, while the sufferers from it are chiefly our fellow-countrymen. There is a well-known idea about John Bull, an idea which he himself entertains and abundance of exercise, the morning tub, the comfort and cleanliness of his habitationthese are what make the English the healthiest people in the world. There is a fine of Arundel (temp. Charles L) employed a own right little, tight little island. One thing man attaining say 180, a pleasant thought at least is certain, that the English are a very in the case of really great men, whose lives world. The ancient Romans may competed with us in the distinction. " Their writers. who do not trouble themselves much; as a rule, with maladies, have plenty to sky about SQUARE his one. Horses and Orid and Diam and Napie this one. Horace and Ovid and Pliny and Seneca all mention it. It seems to have been a Roman more than an Italian ailment. In Seneca's time the Roman women suffered as much as the men, and the cause seems to 23101 have been the familiar one of them. The nature of women, "says So on minimulately enough, "is not altered at their manner of living; for while they wal the men in every kind of luxuriousnes they equal them, too, in their very bodil disorders." Why," he concludes, "nor we then be surprised at seeing so many the female ser afflicted with mout or. gout Pro In dose days heredity had not been recognised the explanation of an ailment. It was give in spring and in autumn-the Roma dectors thought so then, and the Long a doctors seem to think so still.

mny has more to say on the subject than a gouty patient in the interval between two attacks won a foot-race at the Olympio games. But with the thirteenth century we come on the word "gout." What had puzzled the gods of the classic period was explained by a German awant, who declared that it was a humour in the blood thrown out and distilled into the joints drop by drop, and he therefore called it " gicht." The malady had in the meantime spread (with civilisation), and Radulfe's theory was generally adopted. We called it gout; the French "goutte;" the Italians " gotta," the Spaniards " gota." Then comes a long full, during which the then it is like drinking warm water. The averpathetic. He recognised it as the provisions, on the whole, are bad and dear." Nemesis of wealth, as destroying to quote his own words-more rich men than poor. at home, is another source of trouble to and more wise men than simple. The theory Tommy Atkins. "They are allowed to abuse that wine was the cause of the disease came wis how they like, but we bust not attempt up about that time, and was implicitly beto do anything to them, or we get a court. lieved, in. The ancients did not insist so much on the ill effects of Massic and Falernian. It was high living generally that brought his doom on the doman voluptuary. Even the Spanish " gota" was not attributed his own country. Dr. Johnson, who described in his youth that "arthritick tyranny" which he was to suffer from in his old age, dining at the Duke of Argyll on the subject. The Duke was invelobing against the luxury of the it among the Hebrides with the faithful Boswell, probably thought a little luxury would afford an agreeable variety. They were scated round the dinner table at the which of all these dishes is unwholesome?" and maintained that through luxury the which the Doctor replied that man must a small room at the top of the theatre Delta bave got round at last to the old Roman seems a shifteen a shifteen a shifteen a small room at the guard of four bave got round at last to the old Roman seems a shifteen a shi doctrine, and find the cook as responsible as haste, passed their copies on to the conduc-tor, who immediately had it rehearsed by the orchestra. The barburous sence-shifters der such a method as this inspiration should as a nation, they are exceptionally absternicome with surprising rapidity. . . Second ous. The truth is that, however strongly was composed in a house overlooking the country, they do not indulge excessively in the pleasures of the table; moreover, so night and day the boulevard was the resort | completely do either doctors or diseases differ -as time alter—that the much abused port is now coming into vague by direct permisless, I worked with desperation, and it was sion. We return in the end to the knowledge remurbable how soldom a sound seemed to which early experience taught the luxurious reach me other than the exquisite melodies I Romans in the beginning. An active life was trying to give form to. Concentration and a moderate dietary-these are the true of the mind is the secret of the success of proventives, and it is a singular commentary this method. My last plan is not to make on this rule that in these days servants are attacked as wall as their employers, and the class who are subject are found to be butlers and coachmen. London at this very season is pouring forth its array of invalids to garrison Vichy and Royat, to take Hamburg by storm, and to invest most of the Rhenni baths. The waters have high reputation, and, if absolute cure is not obtained, at least the enemy will be besten off. The old Ro mans would say that the fresh air, the early hours, the regular exercise; and the not-too abundant cuisize make the cure, and, if we knew the truth, so probably would the German doctors.-Globs.

THE DURATION OF LIFE.

How long may a human being live in necfect possession of his faculties and powers for good or evil? The question is important to all. Conceive a statesman with a despotic power of influencing men's wills who should last as long as Old Parr! Think of a beauty who might eclipse the maidens of each fresh season, and whose hesternes reses should outglow their fresh loveliness, as long as Ninon de l'Enclos was a toost, or Marion Delorme, to whom Balz ic assigns 130 ventel . History. sceial or political, would be altered; the whole progress of humanity might be advanced for mons or retarded by one man, who varied from the kindly race of men and lived twice as long as his oldest neighbour. If we may believe a curious old French book, "History of Persons who have lived for many Ages and grown young again" (Paris, 1716), this fancy is not wholly absurd or impossible All Europe expects great changes from the deaths of Prince Bismarck, of Von Moltke. of the Emperor. How would all Europe 1950? Before the Deluge such lives would And since the Deluge? Hereon our French authorenlightens us with learning from Pliny Cornaro, and Phlegon of Tralle. Thus Fohi the founder of the Chinese Empire, reigned 115 years, and so did Apaphus of Thebes Egyptian, but he, surely, was the son of Zeus; Antiochus Epiphanes died at 149! A king of the Ommanians lived to 115, but that was in Arabis Felix. Tacitus gives 175 years to Tuisco, a German prince. Daddon, an Illyrian noble, lived for 500 years, according to Alexander Cornelias. Anacreon gives Cinyras of Cyprus 100 years, and Arganthonius, a Spaniard, saw 150 summers. Acording to Bonfinius, Attile was 124 when he died of the consequences of a revel on the night of his marriage-his second marriage, How long had he lamented his first consort Epimenides was 157 (others say 299) at his gloriously spreads about :- his habits make regretted decease. At 100 Euphranor gave bim what he is. Plenty of wholesome food up taking private pupils. Sophocles perished, by an accident, at 130. The Anocrypha mentions the circumstance that Mattathias died by misadventure at 146. The Counters insularity in the boast, which, however, scarcely Mrs. Gamp of 123. Thus, even in its obtains full credence outside the limits of our patural way, we need never despair of any gouty people, probably the goutiest in the are useful to their country.
